Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have been following the MicroSoft anti-trust trial on and off, and largely, I have been saddened by the complete collapse of the case after the Appeals court disagreed with the original set of remedies.

Rather than go into a lengthy discussion of what I feel is wrong with the settlement, let me simply say that I agree with what Dan Kegel has posted at <http://www.kegel.com/remedy/letter.html> regarding this proposed settlement.

Furthermore, I would like to point out that the settlement does not sufficiently punish MicroSoft for the illegal actions it has taken in the past, let alone prevent future ones. That such a company can flaunt the law, and be given a slap on the wrist in return is a painful event to watch.

Thank you for your consideration,
